Disease Models & Mechanisms

Open Access (rights and permissions)

Disease Models & Mechanisms is a fully (author-pays) Open Access journal. All articles are published under the CC-BY license and deposited in PMC for immediate release. DMM is a member of CHORUS and will ensure that your article complies with US public access mandates. If you pay for Open Access publication and we fail to fulfil these Open Access commitments, an Article Publication Charge (APC) rebate is available – please contact the Editorial Office.

Please see the table below for further details on what our Open Access policy means.

	Gold Open Access
Author information
Fees	Article Publication Charge (APC): £2500 (plus VAT if applicable). This applies to Research and Resource articles only (no fee is charged for commissioned works).
License	CC-BY license
Copyright owner	The author
Preprint servers	DMM allows posting of the non-peer-reviewed version of primary research papers on preprint servers. Versions that have been revised following peer review at this journal should not be posted.
Content freely available on journal website	Immediately upon publication
Use in other articles created by the author	Allowed by CC-BY license
Deposition in PMC	FREE author service. Immediately upon publication. Final published PDF.

We use cookies to help us improve this website. Learn more

Close

Self archiving
Posting on author's website	Immediately upon publication of the final version. Any version, including final published PDF. Must attribute source, e.g. by citing doi and linking to the published article on the journal website.
Inclusion in thesis	Immediately upon publication of the final version. Any version, including final published PDF. Must attribute source, e.g. by citing doi and linking to the published article on the journal website.
Institutional repository, thesis repository or PMC Europe	Immediately upon publication of the final version. Any version, including final published PDF. Must attribute source, e.g. by citing doi and linking to the published article on the journal website.
Use by parties other than the authors
Teaching purposes	Allowed by CC-BY license
Commercial use	Allowed by CC-BY license
Third-party article collections	Allowed by CC-BY license
Responsible text and data mining (TDM)	Allowed by CC-BY license

DMM has a small budget for partially or fully waiving Open Access publication charges for authors in developing countries and others in genuine financial hardship. Funds for waivers are limited, however, as the journal would not be sustainable without income from author charges to cover its costs. A growing number of funding bodies and institutions make funds available to authors specifically for the payment of Open Access publication charges. In most cases, funders allow authors to use general grant funds to cover publication costs. Requests for waivers from authors with research grants are unlikely to be approved, unless a strong case can be made as to why a grant cannot be used to cover publication costs. Please note that the ability to pay is never a criterion in the editorial decision-making process. Editors and reviewers do not have access to information regarding authors' financial contributions. DMM is published by the not-for-profit publisher The Company of Biologists, a charitable organisation run by scientists to support the research community.

Data mining

Article full text, metadata and citations may be crawled without special permission or registration. We ask that, where you reuse content, you attribute the original source, e.g. by citing doi and linking to the published article on the journal website.

We use cookies to help us improve this website. Learn more

Close